

Supplementary material

Effect of Alkaline Salts on Calcium Sulfoaluminate Cement Hydration

Luís Urbano D. Tambara Júnior ^{1,2,}, Janaíde C. Rocha ¹, Malik Cheriaf ¹, Pilar Padilla-Encinas ², Ana Fernández-Jiménez ² and Angel Palomo ^{2,}

¹ Laboratory of Waste Valorization and Sustainable Materials (ValoRes), Department of Civil Engineering, Federal University of Santa Catarina (UFSC), Florianópolis 88040900, Brazil; janaide.rocha@ufsc.br (J.C.R.); malik.cheriaf@gmail.com (M.C.)

² Eduardo Torroja Institute, National Research Council (CSIC), 28033 Madrid, Spain; maria.padilla@ietcc.csic.es (P.P.-E.); anafj@ietcc.csic.es (A.F.-J.)

* Correspondence: luistambara@gmail.com (L.U.D.T.J.); palomo@ietcc.csic.es (A.P.)

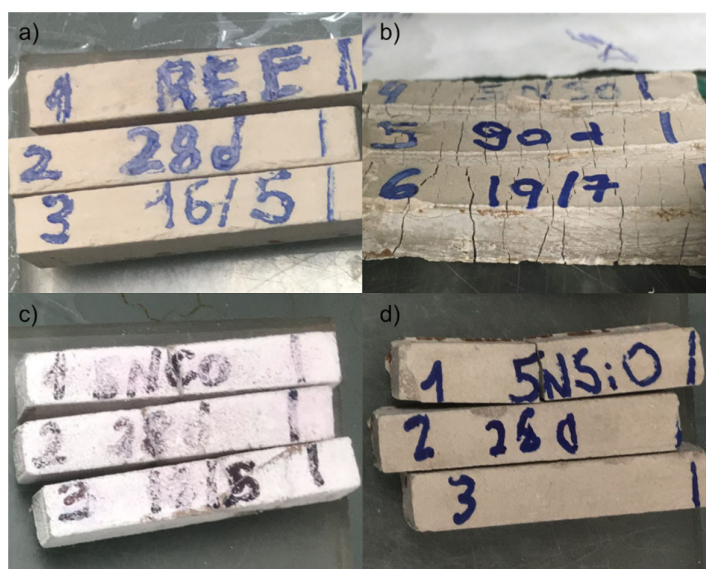

Figure S1. Twenty-eight-day air-cured specimens: a) REF; b) 5NS; c) 5NC; d) 5NSi.

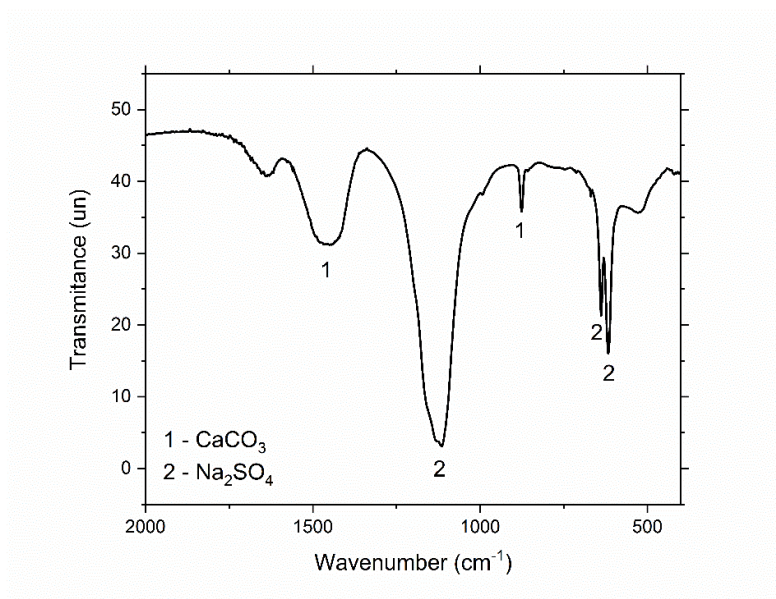

Figure S2. FTIR spectrum for efflorescence on 28 d 5NC pastes.