

Figure S1. Heatmap generated using complete linkage hierarchical clustering based on Euclidean distances showing the median elemental abundances (quantified as moderated z-scores) of clusters for elemental compositions of body hair from different regions. The relationship is presented by a dendrogram in which rows represent body region and columns elements, with a specific color representing the magnitude of abundance (please refer to the text for a full explanation of the heatmap results).