Figure S1. Receiver operating characteristic (ROC) curve for predicting upper facial weakness in patients with central facial palsy due to acute ischemic stroke. The ROC curve illustrates the performance of the multiple logistic regression model evaluating the association between selected predictors and the likelihood of upper facial weakness in patients with central facial palsy following acute ischemic stroke.