

QASLU-27

Prior to the experience

1. Students receive “theoretical training” about service-learning

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

Planning the experience

2. The service-learning experience you will run comes from a necessity identified by community partners

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

3. Strengthens, resources and limitations of the final receiver group are taken in to account in the definition of the service

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

4. Curricular objectives have been clearly settled down

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

5. Aims related with values like participation, cooperation, solidarity and respect, have been settled down

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

6. Aims related with quality of the service that should respond the necessity of the community have been established

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

7. Roles and responsibilities are defined for each actor (students, community partners, professors)

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

8. Reflection and activities about the quality of the given service are made among the service-learning experience

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

9. What, when and how are made the evaluation and who do the evaluation is planned

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

10. Working schedule is made

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

11. Material and personal resources are foreseen to execute the service

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

12. Potential collaborations between institutions are foreseen

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

Experience execution

13. Common decisions are made during the implementation of the service

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

14. Reflection of the learning and the service are made

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

15. Professors promote reflection about roles and responsibilities

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

Closing and multiplication

16. Experience assessment aims the improvement of process and results

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

17. Assessments are made at the beginning, during and at the end of the experience

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

18. Professors ask information to the community about the evolution of the service during different stages of the service

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

19. Professors assess their own actions during each stage of the service-learning experience

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

20. Students assess their own related with process and results

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

21. Experience assessment of service-learning collect all participant voices (including collective receivers)

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

22. Acquired learning is analysed

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

23. If service-learning experience develops cooperation among the actors (students, community partners, professors) in analysed

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

24. Level of satisfaction with the service on receiver group and community is analysed

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

25. This experience inspires other social groups to participate in service-learning projects

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

26. The experience is celebrated in a collective way (receivers, students, community partners and professors)

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always

27. Disseminate activities are made

Never Seldom Sometimes Frequently Always