New Technologies in Minimally Invasive Dentistry

Message from the Guest Editors

In medicine and surgery, minimally invasive procedures are requested in order to reduce the post-surgery discomfort for the patients treated. In dentistry, progress is in the same direction in all fields. This Special Issue of Applied Sciences, "New Technologies in Minimally Invasive Dentistry", invites articles focused on research regarding the development of new technologies in dentistry. Experimental, theoretical, and computational studies in the field of dentistry are all encouraged. Topics include, but are not limited to:

- Lasers in periodontology, peri-implantitis, orthodontics, and prosthodontics;
- Innovations in restorative dentistry, prosthodontics, orthodontics, and oral surgery;
- CAD/CAM in prosthodontics, implant surgery and orthodontics;
- Innovations in digital dentistry

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

As the world of science becomes ever more specialized, researchers may lose themselves in the deep forest of the ever increasing number of subfields being created. This open access journal Applied Sciences has been started to link these subfields, so researchers can cut through the forest and see the surrounding, or quite distant fields and subfields to help develop his/her own research even further with the aid of this multi-dimensional network.
