

Special Issue

Biomimetic Peptides and Proteins

Message from the Guest Editors

Mimicry is known above all in relation to the world of organisms; however, molecular mimicry is just as widespread. The ability to mimic the functions of some molecules through the engineering of other molecules opened the route to a vast field of research, in both the design and development of biomimetic materials, which are treated in other volumes, and in the field of molecular biomimetics, which are the central topic of this Special Issue. The topics of interest include, but are not limited to the following aspects: molecular mimicry; protein domain; synthetic peptide; scaffold protein; antibody-like protein; loop mutagenesis; rational design; computational design; protein motif; agonist; antagonist; non-natural amino acids; synthetic biology; structural biology; biochemistry; solid-phase synthesis; binding site.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Engineering, Multidisciplinary) / CiteScore - Q2
(Biomedical Engineering)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 20.3 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2024).
