Gastrointestinal Malignancy: Epidemiology and Risk Factors

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue, titled "Gastrointestinal Malignancy: Epidemiology and Risk Factors", is dedicated to unveiling cutting-edge research and novel insights in the field of gastrointestinal cancers. It will particularly emphasize emerging trends and technologies in diagnosis and treatment, including advances in molecular markers and genetic risk factors. The Special Issue seeks to present a comprehensive exploration of various gastrointestinal malignancies, delving into their epidemiology and the multifaceted risk factors contributing to their onset and progression. Contributions from global experts will offer a rich tapestry of perspectives, with the aim of significantly impacting clinical practices and public health policies.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Cancers is an international online journal addressing both clinical and basic science issues related to cancer research. The journal is publishing in Open Access format, which will certainly evolve to ensure that the journal takes full advantage of the rapidly changing world of information and knowledge dissemination. It publishes high-quality clinical, translational, and basic science research on cancer prevention, initiation, progression, and treatment, as well as other related topics, particularly to capture the most seminal studies in the rapidly growing area of immunology, immunotherapy, and tumor microenvironment.
