

Special Issue

Computational Modeling of Social Processes and Social Networks

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue intends to publish original research whereby different computational methods are applied to investigate a range of social phenomena, such as collective action and prosocial behavior, opinion formation, information dissemination, and social network evolution. Both theoretical and empirical studies are encouraged. In our opinion, special attention should be devoted to linking the theoretical and empirical aspects of modeling the role of social media platforms in social dynamics as well as to studying the impact of ranking algorithms on the organization of information environment. Research on opinion mining and sentiment analysis are also welcome.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

You are invited to contribute a research article, a comprehensive review or a software paper for consideration and publication in Computers (ISSN 2073-431X). Computers is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal which provides an advanced forum for computer sciences. Computers is published in open access format—research articles, reviews and other contents are released on the Internet immediately after acceptance. The scientific community and the public have unlimited and free access to the content as soon as it is published. We would be pleased to welcome you as one of our authors.
