Advances and Novelties in Hepatobiliary and Pancreatic Imaging

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue aims at providing the latest information regarding important developments in the field of Hepato-pancreato-biliary (HPB) imaging, by gathering contributions concerning all aspects of HPB imaging. This concerns improvements in conventional imaging techniques focused both on focal and diffuse HPB pathologies, as well as the rapidly progressing artificial intelligence techniques which have become increasingly important in HPB imaging. In addition, contributions may also be focused on liver transplantation imaging.
