Medical Radiology in Italy: Current Progress

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue welcomes the submission of any type of radiologic investigation from Italian authors.

Submissions focusing on hot topics as well as state-of-the-art methods and fields of interest related to body imaging, neurodiagnostics and interventional procedures and musculo-skeletal radiology will be considered. All manuscripts will undergo a peer-review process. As we hope to enhance the Italian body of literature in this field with this issue, papers should be written by Italian-based authors or institutions. In conclusion, this Special Issue aims to create a collection of review articles and original contributions on the current progress of medical radiology in Italy, with the intent of improving the quality of patients' diagnostic imaging.
