Diagnosis of Cardio-Thoracic Diseases

Message from the Guest Editor

Cardiothoracic diseases are a leading cause of death worldwide and their early and accurate diagnosis is crucial for effective treatment and management. Noninvasive imaging has revolutionized the way cardiothoracic diseases are diagnosed and evaluated. The use of imaging techniques such as echocardiography, computed tomography (CT), and magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) has greatly improved the accuracy and speed of diagnosis, and therefore patient management and outcomes. The articles in this Special Issue will provide valuable insights for clinicians, researchers, and technicians involved in the field of cardiothoracic imaging. It is a pleasure to invite you to contribute to this Special Issue entitled "Diagnosis of Cardio-Thoracic Diseases" with original contributions and review articles focused on imaging to demonstrate the continued progress being made in this area and highlight the importance of utilizing these techniques for improving patient outcomes. We are looking forward to receiving your submissions.
