Reviews on Critical Care

Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of the Special Issue is to cover a broad spectrum of clinical care clinical practices and basic research advances and innovations in clinical anesthesia, intensive care, and emergency medicine. It also can include the impact of anesthesia, intensive care and emergency care on the environment and the impact of frailty on postoperative outcome. The Special Issue hopes to bring together healthcare specialists who treat patients in the operating room, intensive care unit, and emergency department, and other healthcare professionals. We hope to provide an open and friendly platform and space for the exchange and share of ideas and views on the management of the critically ill patients, offering in-depth coverage of this specialty. In this Special Issue, reviews are welcome.
