Gastrointestinal: Inflammation, Immunity and Cancer Pathways

Message from the Guest Editor

Cancer is a major problem of disease worldwide and each year, more than millions of people are detected with cancer around the world, and more than half of them die. Gastrointestinal cancers are among the highest death causing cancers in the world. The incidence of these cancers were an estimated 4.8 million cases and 3.4 million deaths worldwide. Gastrointestinal cancer is a group of cancers that affect the gastrointestinal tract. Gastrointestinal cancer include esophageal, stomach, gallbladder, gastrointestinal stromal tumor, liver, pancreatic, colon, rectal and anal cancer. Through this Special Issue "Gastrointestical: Inflammation, Immunity and Cancer Pathways" we aim to highlight the new discoveries and advances in the mechanism, diagnosis, prevention, and treatment in gastrointestinal cancer molecular biology.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
