Functional Genomics of Energy Crops 2.0

Message from the Guest Editor

As is well known, biomass energy has always been crucial to human survival and will continue play an integral role in future sustainable energy systems. However, the bottleneck of biomass resources will seriously restrict the development of the biomass energy industry. Therefore, this Special Issue, entitled “Functional Genomics of Energy Crops”, aims to stimulate comprehensive research into energy crops. We will consider any articles presenting the latest findings on biomass metabolism, high light efficiency, high biomass, functional genomics, breeding, biomass conversion, and stress resistance of energy crops for publication. Overall, this Special Issue will present both basic science and applied research to construct a more cohesive comprehension of energy crop science, considering all the aspects of this complex puzzle.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
