Special Issue

Carbonic Anhydrase and Biomarker Research

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue of IJMS is aimed to cover the more recent insights in the research of carbonic anhydrase as promising biomarker in several areas of interest from human health to environmental sciences, opening new perspectives for translation of advances in basic sciences on this ancient enzyme into innovative applications. The formats for submissions include original research reports, reviews/mini-reviews, perspectives/opinions and methodology articles. Keywords:

- carbonic anhydrase
- biomarker
- pH regulation
- cancer
- tumor microenvironment
- heavy metals
- pollutant
- biomonitoring

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
