Dry Eye and Ocular Surface Disorders 2.0

Message from the Guest Editors

Recent outcomes of dry eye research are remarkable, and its pathophysiology is becoming more clear in several fronts including nervous system involvement. However, the understanding of the pathology, diagnosis and treatment of dry eye is still inadequate. New insights and breakthroughs will be necessary in order to overcome these problems in the future. In this special issue, we are looking for research results including new findings in the fields of ocular surface and dry eye disease. The aim is to broaden the direction and possibilities of dry eye research. We are looking forward to and will be welcoming your invaluable work in this issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
