Mesoporous Materials: From Synthesis to Applications

Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues: Porous materials are structures with a high specific surface area, narrow pore size distribution and tuneable pore size distribution. These materials have emerged as interesting frameworks for the scientific community due their high potential in various areas, including adsorption, separation, sensing, and catalysis. This Special Issue is aimed to provide a range of original contributions detailing the synthesis, design, characterization and applications in different areas of porous materials (e.g., catalysis, separation, sensing, adsorption, drug delivery, etc). Sincerely invite you to contribute a full research paper or review article for peer-review and possible publication in our special issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The International Journal of Molecular Sciences (IJMS, ISSN 1422-0067) is an open access journal, which was established in 2000. The journal aims to provide a forum for scholarly research on a range of topics, including biochemistry, molecular and cell biology, molecular biophysics, molecular medicine, and all aspects of molecular research in chemistry. IJMS publishes both original research and review articles, and regularly publishes special issues to highlight advances at the cutting edge of research. We invite you to read recent articles published in IJMS and consider publishing your next paper with us.
