Clinical Perspectives on Acute Coronary Syndrome

Message from the Guest Editors

It is our pleasure to invite you to submit an article for this Special Issue titled “Clinical Perspectives on Acute Coronary Syndrome”. Approximately one-third of all deaths globally are due to ischemic heart disease, with acute coronary syndrome (ACS) being the leading cause of mortality. A thorough understanding of the causes of ACS, its pathophysiology, clinical characteristics, and potential outcomes is essential for every medical professional. The aim of this Special Issue is to highlight the multidisciplinary approach needed to expand our clinical knowledge on ACS. Combining the expertise of cardiologists, interventional cardiologists, and cardiovascular surgeons, as well as researchers and other medical professionals, is crucial in developing adequate evidence-based treatments, creating further research lines, and delivering the best patient care. We encourage the submission of all types of manuscripts, including original studies, reviews, and case reports.
