Clinical Frontiers in Autism Spectrum Disorder

Message from the Guest Editors

In 2022, we will be launching our first Special issue on “Clinical Frontiers in Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD)”. The goal is to provide both clinicians and researchers worldwide with cutting-edge research in ASD as well as clinical knowledge in assessing and caring for individuals with ASD across treatment settings. We welcome a wide range of manuscripts from expert clinicians and researchers on various topics, including but not limited to genetics, gender and equality, common medical and psychiatric co-occurring conditions, neuromodulation, management of severe behavior and mood dysregulation across various settings, employment and higher education, families and school, nonmedical intervention, substance use, and legal and government support. We welcome both solicited and unsolicited submissions that will contribute to this goal. We also welcome studies with negative studies, which is also one of the unique features of this journal.
