

Special Issue

Offshore Renewables for a Transition to a Low Carbon Society

Message from the Guest Editors

In recent years, significant advances have been made when it comes to ocean energy extraction. However, there are still important steps to be performed for the implementation of the most effective technologies that could operate successfully and survive in the harsh marine environment for a long period of time. From this perspective, the main target of this Special Issue is improve the renewable energy agenda through enhanced scientific and multi-disciplinary works, aiming to enhance knowledge and performance in extracting ocean energy. From this perspective, we strongly encourage scientific works targeting innovative technical developments, reviews, case studies, and analytics, as well as assessments and manuscripts related to different disciplines, which are relevant to the extraction of offshore renewables and related topics.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The Journal of Marine Science and Engineering (JMSE, ISSN 2077-1312) is an international peer-reviewed open access journal which provides an advanced forum for studies related to marine science and engineering. The journal aims to provide scholarly research on a range of topics, including ocean engineering, chemical oceanography, physical oceanography, marine biology and marine geosciences. We invite you to publish in our journal sharing your important research findings with the global ocean community.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed with Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), GeoRef, Inspec, AGRIS, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Engineering, Marine) / CiteScore - Q2 (Civil and Structural Engineering)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 16.9 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.6 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2024).
