

Special Issue

Towards Intelligence and Resilience: Creative Solutions for Further Urban Transition

Message from the Guest Editors

Cities, facing climate change, infrastructure decay, and governance issues, need strategies for intelligent, resilient, and inclusive growth. We aim to explore the intersection of intelligence and resilience in urban transitions, providing holistic approaches to complex urban challenges. This Special Issue aims to serve as a platform for advancing research and discussion on the critical need for innovative urban transition strategies in the face of global and local challenges. We welcome the submission of papers that address critical research questions in this field, use innovative methodologies and data sources, contribute to theoretical debates, or highlight fundamental patterns that deserve more attention. Topics of interest may include:

- Multi-hazard risk coupling quantification methods;
- Energy security mechanism under extreme events;
- Organizational resilience of emergency commands and dispatch systems;
- Material supply chain security and intelligent operation;
- Health and safety resilience strategies for the urban environment;
- Smart urban renewal towards achieving sustainability;
- Cross-regional action plan for emergency responses.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant impact factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years. I strongly recommend Land for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
