

Special Issue

Urban Sprawl: Spatial Planning, Vision Making and Externalities

Message from the Guest Editors

In this special issue, we invite the Authors of the papers that address issues linking spatial planning, spatial and economic effects of spatial policies and their externalities. Submitted articles may focus on a single issue but also cover several issues. We accept methodological, cognitive and conceptual-theoretical papers devoted to local as well as regional problems. We particularly welcome the submission of studies combining the issues of spatial management, urban and regional planning, and other fields related to space organisation, conservation and protection, aiming to reduce spatial chaos and create development visions for improving spatial structures. Considering externalities and spatial externalities, we expect studies that include aspects of measuring the effects of spatial development.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Land is the only open access journal covering all aspects of land science, and it is a pioneering platform for publishing on land system science. Our editorial board is comprised of eminent scholars. We publish high quality research on societally relevant, emerging and innovative topics and results in land system research. It is now one of the top land journals with a significant impact factor, and has a goal to become the best journal in land in the coming years. I strongly recommend Land for your best research publications for a fast dissemination of your research.
