10th Brazilian Symposium on Medicinal Chemistry (BrazMedChem_2022)

Message from the Guest Editors

Back in 2001, when the first Brazilian Symposium on Medicinal Chemistry (BrazMedChem) was organized, we could never have imagined that it would become the largest scientific event exclusively dedicated to Medicinal Chemistry in Latin America. During the last twenty years, its various organizers have excelled in the design of multidisciplinary scientific programs that cover the most diverse disciplines and areas that constitute the mosaic of research in medicinal chemistry and complex chain of drug discovery and development. The presence of thousands of young and senior researchers around the world has been the registered trade of BrazMedChem, ensuring a friendly interactive and collaborative atmosphere, aiming to discuss the state of the art of medicinal chemistry and how our work and perspectives can help science to overcome all current challenges related to collective health and effective advances in pharmaceutical sciences and drug discovery. BrazMedChem 2022 participants are cordially invited to contribute original research papers or reviews to this Special Issue of Pharmaceuticals. Other regular submissions are also cordially encouraged to this issue.
