Affective Disorders Psychopharmacology

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue, 'Affective Disorders Psychopharmacology', welcomes articles addressing current pharmacological approaches to treating affective disorders, and research work that explores limitations of existing strategies and/or offer perspectives related to novel pharmacological treatments. The issue also welcomes articles reporting new strategies for detecting responsiveness to treatments and refractoriness in relation to the use of pharmacology in affective disorders by utilising a range of technologies including those that explore brain structure and function, putative peripheral markers of affective disorders, and genetic makeup/variation across the spectrum of affective disorders. We also encourage the submission of articles that compare pharmacological strategies with alternative treatment methods, particularly in relation to important topics such as treatment response, aetiological mechanisms, patients' preferences, etc.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Because of your expertise in the field of drug sciences, I kindly invite you to consider publishing your current work, in the form of a research article or a review, in the open access electronic journal Pharmaceuticals.

Pharmaceuticals is characterized by an active editorial board and a dynamic editorial staff. Manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a final decision is provided to authors within 4–6 weeks after submission. Papers are published on the web immediately after acceptance. For details on the submission process or any other matter, please do not hesitate to contact us.

We hope to handle your contribution to Pharmaceuticals soon.
