Recent Advancements in the 3D Printing of Pharmaceuticals

Message from the Guest Editor

I am happy to invite you all to submit your research to the esteemed journal Pharmaceutics, where the new Special Issue titled 'Recent Advancements in the 3D Printing of Pharmaceuticals' will cover new materials, 3D printing methodologies, drug formulations, AI/ML applications, and more. The major focus of this Special Issue is to highlight cutting-edge research in developing new ways of formulating and fabricating drug dosage forms for continuous and portable manufacturing needs in established and remote places or regions. Your research will be highlighted through this Special Issue to international audiences worldwide. Take advantage of the open-source publishing at MDPI to allow every researcher around the world to access your research.
