Community-Based Pharmacy Practice Quality Improvement and Research

Message from the Guest Editor

Community-based pharmacist practitioners are engaged with new opportunities and practice models including expansion of pharmacist scope of practice and enhanced patient care services. Furthermore, community-based pharmacist practitioners are providing care beyond the four walls of a pharmacy to meet the needs of patients in their communities. However, platforms for disseminating best practices, quality improvement, and implementation science and research remain limited for community-based pharmacy practice. For this Special Issue, we welcome you to contribute original research, systematic reviews, meta-analyses, quality improvement reports, short reports, case studies, and commentaries pertaining to a broader scope and best practices for community-based pharmacy practice.
