

Special Issue

Women in Male-Dominated Domains

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will examine empirical and theoretical approaches to research on women's underrepresentation in male-dominated domains. Papers may focus on the underrepresentation of women in certain high school courses, college majors, or occupations. This underrepresentation may be in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM) or non-STEM-related courses (such as woodworking or welding), majors, or occupations (such as law enforcement and the trades). Articles on causes and consequences of females' underrepresentation are welcome. Submission of manuscripts from a variety of disciplines such as psychology, sociology, economics, political science, and various STEM fields is encouraged.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Social Sciences is an international open access peer-reviewed journal publishing the latest research across all disciplines of the social sciences including anthropology, criminology, economics, education, geography, history, law, linguistics, political science, psychology, social policy, social work, sociology and related areas. The journal is especially interested in interdisciplinary research, and aims to facilitate the interaction and communication between different social scientific disciplines. The journal welcomes conventional length articles as well as shorter Research Notes or short articles, as long as they meet the journal's standards of quality and originality.
