Extreme Weather and Climate Events and Their Impacts on Socio-Ecological Systems and Biodiversity

Message from the Guest Editors

Extreme weather and climate events and their impacts can occur in complex ways. Various anthropogenic actions can also affect the severity of events both directly and indirectly. The goal of this Special Issue is to bring together recent research and current thinking on the different effects of extreme weather and climate events on biodiversity and the sustainability of territories. With this in mind, we invite authors to submit papers that address one or more of the following topics: Impacts on extreme weather and climate events and their interactions on biodiversity, ecological services, and socio-ecological systems; Socio-ecological responses to extreme weather and climate events and their interactions; Mitigation, adaptation, and societal solutions for the impacts of extreme weather and climate events and their interactions on biodiversity and ecological services.
