

Special Issue

Beyond the Lockdown: Digital Transformation and Sustainable Development in Business and Society

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to provide contributions that allow a larger comprehension of how digital technologies and sustainability can support business and society in the current phase of re-start. This suggests the need for new analytical and conceptual frameworks grounded in cross-disciplinary theoretical perspectives and resulting from the integration of consolidated and emerging theories and approaches in the fields of business management, IT management, and sustainability. Topics welcome in this Special Issue include (but are not limited to):

- Digital technologies for a sustainable restart;
- Digital transformation and sustainability after the lockdown;
- Impact of digital transformation in SMEs and big corporations;
- Sustainable business models in the digital landscape;
- New organizational models and smart working;
- Digital transformation enabling sustainable open innovation;
- Digital technologies for sustainable human resource management;
- Digital technologies for knowledge management;
- Digital technologies and circular economy business models;
- Digital transformation and environmental sustainability;
- Digital and sustainable knowledge society.
