

Special Issue

Emissions, Environmental Behavior, Pollution Distribution, Modeling, and Risk Assessment of Persistent Organic Pollutants (POPs)

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will bring together cutting-edge research that addresses the emissions, environmental behavior, pollution distribution, modeling, and risk assessment of POPs. We invite authors to submit original research papers, comprehensive reviews, and concise short communications that contribute to the understanding of POPs in the environment. Topics may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Sources and pathways of POP emissions;
- Fate and transport of POPs in various environmental compartments;
- Spatial and temporal distribution patterns of POPs in the environment;
- Advanced modeling techniques for predicting the behavior and impact of POPs;
- Health and ecological risk assessment methodologies for POP exposure;
- Strategies for the reduction and remediation of POP pollution.
