The Advance of Astronomy and Astrophysics in The Netherlands

Message from the Guest Editors

Astronomy and astrophysics have a longstanding tradition in the Netherlands. Today, a very broad range of topics in modern astronomy are studied, ranging from the evolution of the large-scale structure of the universe down to molecular processes occurring on the surface of grains of ices in the interstellar medium. Researchers in the Netherlands are also at the forefront of the new era of gravitational wave astronomy with their active involvement in LIGO, and the new generation of gravitational-wave observatories such as LISA and the Einstein Telescope. This Special Issue aims to highlight this diversity in research that has led to major contributions in many astronomy fields.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The multidisciplinary Universe journal is aiming to follow and, hopefully, to lead to the largest extent as possible the ever-self renovating threads which weave mathematical theories with our understanding of the magnificent natural world. On behalf of all the distinguished members of the editorial board, I extend my welcome to this new journal and look forward to hearing from the interested contributors and learning about their valuable research.
