Round Cell Tumors of Animals

Message from the Guest Editor

We are pleased to invite you to contribute to this Special Issue on “Round Cell Tumors of Animals”. Round cell tumors, especially hematopoietic disorders, have an increasing incidence in animals. Veterinary oncologists and clinicians must deal with pet owners asking for the most up-to-date treatment regimens. Still, the pathogenesis of round cell tumors is far from being elucidated, and outcome prediction is still difficult and imprecise. This Special Issue aims to deepen the knowledge of the pathogenesis of round cell tumors in animals, with a particular focus on pathogenetic aspects with clinical and prognostic relevance. Research articles and reviews are welcome, as well as case reports. I look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Veterinary Sciences (ISSN 2306-7381) is an international and interdisciplinary scholarly open access journal that aims at publishing research in all fields of veterinary medicine in a democratic way. We encourage scientists to publish their original research articles, reviews, communications, and short notes in as much detail as possible. Articles submitted that involve subjecting animals to unnecessary pain or suffering will not be accepted, and all articles must be submitted with the necessary ethical approval (please refer to the Ethical Guidelines for more information).
